Hello again,

Pardon me for coming back so quickly. I just had a brief informal conversation with someone from Altius, your local council in Belgium. Off the record, they agreed that if they would receive instructions from your Chief Legal Officer's office, to open the books on all that went wrong, that they could. They were actively involved with every victim and in almost all cases wrote NDA's to keep people silent when someone was finally terminated following abuse at work.

The sentiment of the conversation, as is now often the case when talking to others, is that everyone wants to close this chapter that keeps on haunting all of us. People died here, I almost did, but there actual colleagues that in view were murdered, how else can you call it when someone is carefully pushed to commit suicide. One example carefully covered up now, there was actually a suicide in Manila where a NGA employee jumped of the company's office building. Every time people were paid off, silenced, and even after they no longer worded for the company they sometimes continued to be harassed and intimidated.

I would like to propose that you instruct Altius to file a complaint against the abusers of the toxic work environment and prepare this first with victims like me and possible others before going to court. We can agree beforehand on settlements for the victims and Alight will protect itself against any charges of negligence or even criminal negligence.

Kind regards,
Stephane

Hello,

I'd also like to share the attached report of my police interrogation following the complaint of B.Vanrillaer the day after the verdict in court where Alight last its case against me. This is a translation of the original document in Dutch. It clearly explains what happened and what was done to me. When will Alight ever try to make at least some attempt to do what's right. I only pick up news of more things going wrong or that went terribly wrong.

I've also added my last email to your former CEO, Stephan Scholl who initially was the one who reacted to my draft article in August 2023, where earlier attempts to reach out to the Alight Belgium were only met with hostility and legal intimidation.

Some of you might be new to this, so for your convenience, here's the link to the article on LinkedIn that tells my story

Details

Hi Stephan, Mister Scholl,

So far this year:

-1- Alight sued me first thing in January with summary judgement suit to ban the publication of the article published (Alight pushes its own employees to commit suicide).

-2- January 17th judge decided on temporary removal until 1st of May. I complied immediately. The judge did not award Alight with the damaged requested (2500€/d as of Jan 1st).

-3- January 18th (next day) Boris Vanrillaer filed a complaint with local police against me personally (half a page). I was questioned by the police. My lawyers supported me during this interrogation. We provided all answers and legal arguments. Shared sentiment was that there is no basis for this complaint moreover Boris Vanrillaer and Alight did not seem to act in their own best interest with this complaint by Boris as private individual (not by Alight)

-4- Alight did not use the publication ban period until May 1st to start the "in depth case", (legal term in Dutch: "ten gronde") against me on the actual matter. The Summary Judgement only meant to protect Alight from possible damage that still needs to be proven in court. We ask ourselves why? Is this just an intimidation tactic? I heard the term "legal slapping" is now often used the US.

-5- This whole ordeal, that did not have to happen if we could just have sat down and talk end of 2023. The HR investigation by Lydian was completed but nothing on the contents was shared with me. No answers were provided on the questions I raised in the article I sent you last August.

Again feeling quite desperate here as if I'm back in September 2020. The same dark question occupies my mind that was already struggling with never ending voices questioning the same over and over. Voices try hard to hide who they are, but I recognized them from back then. My former colleagues have now learned to better camouflage themselves in my head within the ongoing 24/7 invasion of my mind. It is now an ever more meaner version of this, still lead, daily, by Boris.

So what I did for now:

- I republished the article again on linkedIn though I adapted the title as you can find here:

https://www.linkedin.com/posts/stepvda_activity-7207268040575467520-JL6g?

utm_source=share&utm_medium=member_desktop (as in 2024, let me know if this needs input, reply or even adaption for Alight)

- In the article there's also some recommendations I wrote earlier as a reply to an HRBP's question on twitter:

<https://x.com/stepvda/status/1796949652777877744>

I reached out to a few people at Alight (BE) with this republication, including to Boris. I shared how this brings me back to this dark period in September 2020 where I attempted to kill myself. I did not receive a single reaction.

Browsing a bit around the twitter article, but also on linkedIn today, you can quickly find that the problem of "toxic workplaces" is becoming ever greater problem. Please let's act on this together instead of legal conflict and this wasting of lives.

Kind regards,
Stephane van der Aa

Subject: Re: Publication notice of article concerning Alight and Boris Vanrillaer - toxic abuse at the workplace

Hi,

I received another anonymous piece of information about Boris Vanrillaer that could implicate Alight Sweden in human trafficking and prostitution.

Vanrillaer met a certain Marco P in 2022 who is a Venezuelan national who back then stayed in Denmark on a student Visa. As I understand both had a "date" in Sweden. Vanrillaer insisted on seeing Marco back. To this end Vanrillaer took away Marco's passport. Next Vanrillaer arranged for Alight to put Marco on the Alight payroll as a paid intern earning around 1000 SEK. This arrangement became compensation for what can only be called prostitution. Both met at the Alight office in Stockholm once a month or more, so some other Alight employees in Sweden might have seen Vanrillaer there with this Marco. To make sure Vanrillaer had power over Marco he kept holding his passport so he could not travel back to Venezuela and also this made the traveling back and forth between Copenhagen where Marco had a flat and Sweden more difficult as for non-EU citizens taking the ferry to Stockholm risky as normally this requires an ID for non-EU citizens. Eventually Vanrillaer got Marco to move to Sweden this way by holding his passport. Alight would eventually have spotted this "anomaly" in the payroll and put an end to it by firing Marco but not without letting him sign an NDA with a 5000 SEK compensation to keep this quiet. This would also mean that Vanrillaer is gay.

Back in 2020, I came back to work after a long sick leave and decided to do my coming out as gay at work. Also I finally got the courage to report to Andy Monshaw and Michael Rogers that Vanrillaer had belittled me during a meeting years before in front of other colleagues insinuating that I'm gay, when I was not yet openly gay at the office which was really hurtful. When I started work at the company (Arinso) in 2004 then HR Director Samir Daouk recommended that I keep my sexuality to myself at work. I did this, despite the fact that I really didn't want to continue to hide this now that I was married to my then life partner Pablo who unfortunately died in 2014. Pablo's name would have appeared on insurance documents as beneficiary.

I still find this story about Marco and Vanrillaer hard to believe. If true it does put the ordeal that I had to suffer at Alight in 2020 in a different light. See my article about this here <https://www.linkedin.com/pulse/toxic-workplace-made-me-commit-s%CF%85icide-stephane-van-der-aa-zhhse> It is typical for guilty people to wrongly blame others of their mistakes, shortcomings and crimes so they are not the first to be called out about it and in that way distract attention away from themselves. Boris was picking on me in 2020 in an already toxic workplace because I was gay and because making an example of bullying the gay, would make other coworkers at Alight never think of him as gay. This all sounds very wrong. Still today it's hard for me to imagine this possible in any professional setting, and at Alight. This also would mean that Vanrillaer's behavior further escalated after Alight fired me in 2020 in Belgium, next in 2022 in Sweden where Vanrillaer lives it was tolerated by Alight to incorporate his private-life abuse of Marco in a fake intern-job where Alight essentially paid Marco instead of Vanrillaer for, what may or may not be forced prostitution.

I plan to publish this story on Friday afternoon. Can I please know Alight's official position on this as well as any comments you would like me to add in the article?

If you see a legal reason why this should not be published, please let me know before Friday.

Respectfully to Alight and based on what information you provide me, I will do my civic duty and report this to the authorities while I am still thinking this over during the next few days.

Kind regards,
Stephane van der Aa

Subject: FW: Publication notice of article concerning Alight and Boris Vanrillaer - toxic abuse at the workplace

Hi Brittany,

I just found your details in my linkedIn list of connections. I previously already sent out a note (below) to Alight based on contact addresses I could found through web search but I think you might be better place to pick this up.

Following my intent to publish this article, I gave all concerned notice of publication of this;
<https://www.linkedin.com/pulse/did-boris-vanrillaer-really-steal-all-money-from-fund-van-der-aa-ogu2e>

Please know I have no ill intent against Alight or any individual, I am just looking for answers. Maybe you can use this opportunity to be open about what happened, then and in the aftermath, and how it could have happened to victim's like of toxic abuse at the workplace that took most inhumane forms I dare hardly describe. Still today I suffer from the trauma this caused me 5 years ago.

With this message I'm hoping to start a conversation and perhaps a genuine investigation and also avoid a legal dispute. Still should you have legal reasons why this article should not remain published and you indeed wish it so, then please inform me of this and I will act in accordance with the law and your wishes.

Someone who wishes to remain anonymous shared the story in this latest article with me. This is however more rumor than fact at this time. The facts would however be grave enough that I took the step of publishing asking anyone who knows anything to come forward on linkedIn or contact me privately.

This follows the ordeal I suffered with my dismissal at Alight in 2020, the traumatic experience this was for me which I previously shared in an earlier article here; <https://www.linkedin.com/pulse/toxic-workplace-made-me-commit-s%CF%85icide-stephane-van-der-aa-zhhse>

About 20 people reacted to this article with reports of similar abuse and toxic workplace often about the same guy. This after I spent 5 months, before publishing, with Alight on an HR investigation that reported no problems at all. This denial by the company is what led me to publish in early 2024. Subsequently Alight sued me for defamation but lost.

Kind regards,
Stephane van der Aa

Some related materials from online discussions

How Alight was using their lawyers as part of intimidation for their orchestrated abuse and bullying;
To reframe how surreal things were made for me back in 2020, here's a confidential letter between lawyers in which it is evident that employees have to be always online, (during covid) and distorting trivial things that happened into clear signs of bad faith. They make the absurd sound normal where they have no basis what so ever to demand these things. We were figuring things out during the pandemic and then this. I've considered filing a complaint against this lawyer at Brussels bar association (lawyers) , Do you think I still should? The head of the bar already told me they are most interested in investigating such case.
(ref. attached doc)

anecdotes;

I have read your post about the situation you have been forced to go through in Alight/NGA. I am very sorry to hear about it. Sadly, the problem is systemic and has strong political roots as your post implied.

Btw, i worked with Boris for at least 2yrs. He didnt bully me but i witnessed how he bullied other people.

I have delivery confirmation so I can publish at any time.

Please understand last time in 2023 I gave Alight 5 months to review and you ended up suing me anyway (and lose in court). This cannot be another legal strategizing marathon to add to the abuse.

Respectfully,
Stephane
